

Cheryl Magen serves as the Intern and Mentor coordinator for the Informal and Communal Education track in partnership with Dr. Jeff Kress. She co-facilitates the Mifgash, the community building seminar for first-year Davidson students with Rabbi Jonathan Lipnick. In the spring, Cheryl runs a career coaching workshop for graduating students and is the educational consultant to National Ramah.

Cheryl served as the director of Camp Ramah in the Poconos for 19 years, where in addition to running the overnight camp she created a day camp, a program for the Jewish Deaf and hard of hearing, a family camp and adult camp.

Previously she served as the assistant Hillel director at the University of Pennsylvania and a full-time youth director at Chizuk Amuno in Baltimore, MD. She consults to Jewish not-for-profit organizations on leadership, board development and also coaches management professionals. Cheryl is a consultant for STAR Synagogues: Transformation and Renewal.

Cheryl is the editor of an educational prayer book, Siddur Lev Yisrael, now in its second printing (Ktav, 1998) She also authored educational materials for the Foundation for Jewish Camping, the Gene Ezersky Safety College, The United Synagogue for Conservative Judaism, the Jewish Outreach Institute and STAR: Synagogue Transformation and Renewal.

Cheryl serves as the president of the Keystone Regional section of the American Camping Association and is a past member of the ACA's National Board Development Committee as well as a recipient of the Elenor Eels Award for Excellence in Programming.

Cheryl holds a B.A. From Columbia University in English Literature, a B.H.L. from The Jewish Theological Seminary in Bible and Education, and an M.A. In Education and Behavioral Counseling from Johns Hopkins University.